Judge orders Albert Woodfox's release after more than 40 years in solitary confinement (CNN)

Albert Woodfox, who's spent more than four decades in solitary confinement for a crime he's long argued he didn't commit, might soon set foot outside prison. U.S. District Judge James J. Brady ruled Monday that Woodfox, 68, should be released from prison and should not face a third trial due to "exceptional circumstances," including his age and poor health and the court's "lack of confidence in the state to provide a fair third trial." Woodfox is the last imprisoned member of the so-called "Angola 3," a group of prisoners who were accused in the 1972 killing of guard Brent Miller at the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola. Woodfox -- who was originally imprisoned on an armed robbery conviction -- has said he had tried to point out injustices at the prison and was targeted and wrongfully accused because of his activism as a Black Panther. Robert King, another one of the "Angola 3," was freed after his conviction in the killing of a fellow inmate was overturned in 2001. The same went for Herman Wallace, who was released in 2013 after a judge vacated his murder conviction and sentence. He only experienced a few days of freedom; he was suffering from terminal liver cancer and died just days later. Herman Wallace was released from prison after a judge vacated his murder conviction and sentence. He died days later. Herman Wallace was released from prison after a judge vacated his murder conviction and sentence. He died days later. A federal appeals court overturned Woodfox's conviction last year. But he's remained behind bars and is awaiting a third trial.

Greece submits new reform plan to EU and International Monetary Fund (IMF)

(BBC) It comes days after Greek Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras rejected a set of reforms put forward by EU Commission President Jean Claude Juncker. The EU and IMF want further economic reforms before they release €7.2bn (£5.3bn) of bailout funds. It is believed Athens has conceded ground on VAT reforms, pensions and the country's primary surplus target. The reform plan comes a day before Mr. Tsipras meets the French president and German chancellor. Last week, Greece "bundled up" a €300m (£221m) payment to the IMF, delaying the payment until the end of June when a total of €1.5bn is due to be paid. Among the plans being put forward by the government, it is believed Greece is willing to increase VAT, but still maintain three rates: a standard rate, a reduced rate for food and medicine and a further reduced rate for books and hotel accommodation. The government has proposed increasing its three rates of VAT, according to Greek newspaper Ekathimerini. Athens is also willing to move closer to creditor demands over the primary surplus as well, the newspaper reports. The EU and IMF want the economy to run a primary surplus of 1% of GDP this year and 2% next year. Athens prefers a target of 0.6% of GDP this year and 1% next year.

SITUATION SUMMARY

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

An upper low will move across central California by the middle of the week bringing chances for showers and thunderstorms across the North Coast through Wednesday. High temperatures across the interior will be above normal through the week while near seasonal temperatures will persist near the coast. Drier conditions will return Thursday and Friday.

Medford Weather:

As the upper level low moves into central California later tonight into Wednesday, the mid to upper level flow will become northerly across Northern California and the air mass will begin to dry out from northwest to southeast. Scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms are still expected on Wednesday, specifically southern and eastern Siskiyou and Modoc counties. Temperatures will be about 5 to 15 degrees cooler than they are today.

Reno Weather:

Very warm and dry conditions will be replaced by an approaching area of low pressure aloft today. This low will bring increased moisture and a good chance of thunderstorms today. Some of these storms could become severe late this afternoon. More widespread showers, with some locally heavy rain are likely Wednesday. Dry and warm conditions return for the end of the week before another area of low pressure increases thunderstorm chances into the weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

An upper level system will spread shower and thunderstorm chances northward today and tonight and into Wednesday. Daytime temperatures will be significantly more moderate.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Threat of showers and thunderstorms increases today and Wednesday with cooling trend. Warmer temperatures return Thursday into the weekend with mainly dry weather.

Hanford Weather:

Upper level low off the coast will bring a northward surge of tropical moisture from the remnants of Tropical Storm Blanca today. Thunderstorms are possible today across the entire central California interior. Thunderstorms are possible across the Sierra through Friday with a continuation of above normal temperatures.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Low pressure will approach the area and entrain moisture from the remnants of Tropical Storm Blanca. This will result in a chance of showers and thunderstorms today. On Wednesday, dry conditions are anticipated except for a slight chance of showers and thunderstorms over the mountains. Dry and seasonable conditions are expected Thursday through next Monday.

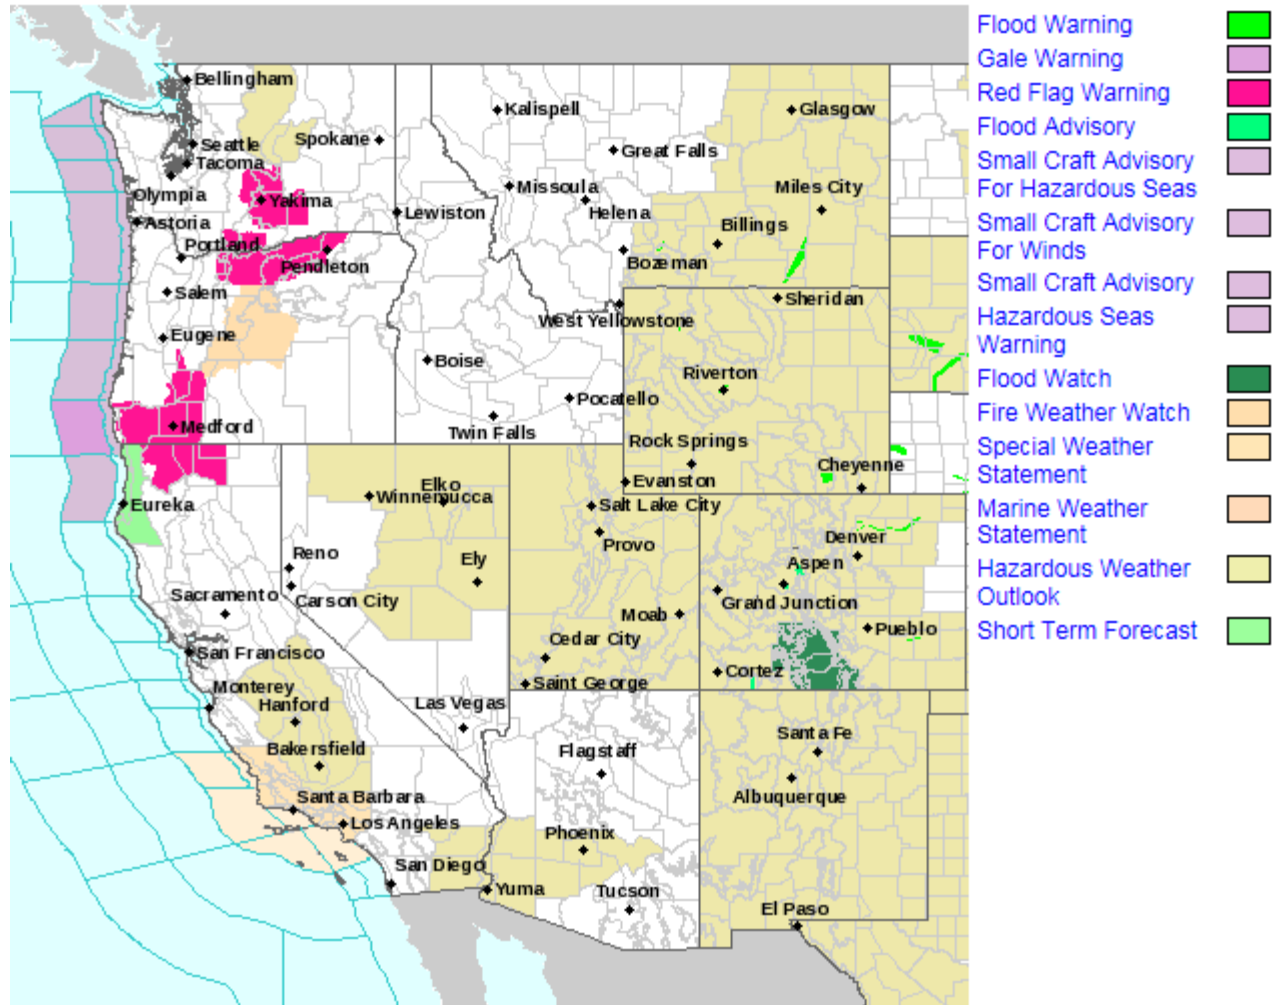

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Moisture from the remnants of former Hurricane Blanca will bring higher humidities today and clouds with cooler inland temperatures. There will be scattered showers with the greatest potential for thunderstorms with locally heavy rainfall near the mountains in the afternoon. For Wednesday, a trough of low pressure moving inland through California will bring drying aloft. Residual lower level moisture with higher humidities will remain in place with a slight chance of afternoon thunderstorms near the San Bernardino Mountains. The marine layer will return to coastal areas tonight, slowly deepen into Thursday, then become gradually shallower into next week. There are also small chances for thunderstorms near the San Bernardino Mountains Friday afternoon. Inland temperatures will gradually become warmer beginning Thursday into early next week.

Southeast California Weather:

Moisture associated with the remnants of Tropical Depression Blanca will be moving slowly from today into Wednesday, resulting in an increased chance of rainfall across the area along with cooler temperatures. Drier air and a return to normal temperatures will return late in the week through the weekend.
